Fun Activity Book By David Blustein Landmarks in book are well represented across the country, including St. Louis, Seattle, San Antonio, Chicago, NYC. The models are small but when finished very real looking. I had fun putting them together. There were a few frustrating moments with the glue and the folds. The scales are all different, so if you are putting together a diorama the models will not go well. I have them placed together and give geography tests to people, to see if they recognize where the landmark is. I used a iris, or manicure scissor for lots of the small cuts. The exacto knife did not work as well for these cuts. So I do recommend the iris scissors if you plan to do this. Some of the parts will need a curve, use a pencil to for the curve. There are also some good tips for working with paper models at the end of the book. The little pins of the locality are very colorful and add much to the value. If you like miniatures you will definitely like this activity book. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great little model book By George L. Clifton Great little model book. Are you a history fanatic?By CustomerDo you love historical places? Are you the kind of person that, when giving a class, uses props? Then this book is for you. With plenty of U.S. landmarks to select from, like the Alamo if you are a Texan, this book will keep you entertained (and probably will make your lecture livelier) when you are making your very own model. The only downside if that the models are extremely small. I wonder if there is a printed version that is bigger than this one?

Model-builders and architecture buffs of all ages will delight in these 16 miniature replicas of famous buildings. Printed on sturdy stock in scales varying from 1:300 to 1:3000, the finished landmarks will literally fit into the palm of your hand! Models include: The Alamo; Chicago Water Tower; Empire State Building; Faneuil Hall; Flatiron Building; Gateway Arch; Independence Hall; Lincoln Memorial; Los Angeles City Hall; Monticello; Space Needle; Statue of Liberty; Transamerica Pyramid; Washington Monument; The White House; and Willis Tower.
